Letter of Endorsement

I am pleased to share my experience using the self-evaluation technique with my students after working on Who Moved My Cheese?. This strategy had a very positive impact on their learning process.

Through self-evaluation, students became more aware of their own understanding of the text, their strengths, and the areas they needed to improve. Instead of focusing only on the final grade, they reflected on how they approached the reading, how well they identified the main ideas, and how effectively they participated in discussions.

I noticed a clear improvement in their engagement and responsibility. Students were more motivated, more confident in expressing their opinions, and more willing to correct their mistakes. The self-assessment process also helped them develop critical thinking skills and autonomy.

Overall, the self-evaluation technique not only improved their academic performance but also fostered a more reflective and independent attitude toward learning.

Sincerely,

María
